What does the survey look like?

There are different surveys depending on the event. For example, there would be a different survey for a home offer versus a home tour.

The survey itself is broken into two smaller surveys. The first survey is the same for all events and asks:

1. How likely are you to recommend your agent's real estate services to a friend or acquaintance?
(Rated from 0 to 10, with 10 being the strongest possible recommendation.)
2. Please review your experience with your agent.
3. Can we anonymously share your comments about your agent with other Redfin website users? **We will never share your name, email, or other contact information.*

If you worked with a Redfin Partner Agent, your survey may include additional questions about your experience.

Once the client submits the first survey, the client may be taken to a longer second survey. The second survey asks questions that are specific to the event. These responses are used internally for things like developing demographic statistics and are not directly displayed on Redfin.com.

How is the star rating calculated?

The star rating is the average of all of the returned ratings. The returned rating is actually measured on a scale from 0 to 10. All ratings are averaged and then divided by 2 to get the overall star rating.

Back to top

What question is asked to get that agent rating?

The question is, "How likely are you to recommend [Redfin Agent]'s services to a friend or acquaintance?" It is considered by many experts to be the best question to determine customer satisfaction. Clients can answer on a scale from 0 to 10, with 10 being most likely to recommend Redfin. This is used to calculate the agent rating and Redfin's overall Net Promoter Score for the agent(NPS). This score is divided by 2 to get the star rating for each review.
